

Three to watch

WHO, WHAT, WEAR

Kick start

James Rhodes wears jeans to perform, Twitters regularly and this month became the first classical musician to give a solo recital at London's Roundhouse.

"Classical music needs a kick up the a," he says. And with his debut album, Razor Blades, Little Pills and Big Pianos, topping the iTunes classical chart, he's the man to do it.

Make do and mend

Learn how to make a sunhat, bake bread and plant cabbages with the help of this nostalgic trio of original Forties reproductions. First issued during the Second World War, they are republished this month at £9.99 each (www.harpercollins.com).

Bag an artwork

Fashion snapper Sølve Sundsbø has taken the unusual step of turning his work into wearable art. Channel your inner Rapunzel with the goddess print, pictured, or celebrate summer with his parrot bag. Available from June at Browns (www.brownsfashion.com).
